

Igniting the Flame for a Sweat-free Olympics

- Can workers making Olympic-branded products expect fair labour practices?
- How far and how fast do sportswear brands need to go to improve wages and working conditions?
- Does “made in China” equal “poor working conditions”? What can companies, governments, trade unions and NGOs do to promote and protect worker rights in China?

Speakers

Doug Miller, International Textile, Garment and Leather Workers’ Federation, Brussels
 Monina Wong, Labour Action China, Hong Kong
 Caitlin Morris, Director of Compliance Integration and Collaboration, Nike Inc.
 Ann Duffy, Corporate Sustainability Officer, VANOC
 Jim Sinclair, President, British Columbia Federation of Labour
 Kevin Thomas, Director of Advocacy, Maquila Solidarity Network

Thursday, June 12, 2008

9:00 am – 1:00 pm

Joseph & Rosalie Segal Centre
 at SFU Harbour Centre,
 515 West Hastings
 Vancouver, British Columbia

Presented by: BC Federation of Labour, Canadian Labour Congress,
 Ethical Trading Action Group, New Westminster & District Labour Council, Vancouver & District Labour Council. Partnering with:
 Community Education Programs, Continuing Studies, Simon Fraser University

With support from the Community Savings Credit Union

Registration:

$30 civil society, $50 companies, $10 students
 To register, call or email the CLC Pacific Regional Office at 604-430-6766 or pacific@clc-ctc.ca

PHOTO: CRASHORAN